The Ellenville Journal gives the following account of a marriage in D nning and the attending circumstances. It is a proverb that "Love laughs at locksmiths," it may also be said that Love overcomes all opposition: Married-In Penning, October 27th, by Jacob Osterhoudt, Esq , Mr. Nathan Hinckley to Miss Mary E. Donaldson, of

There were some peculiar circumstances attending the above marriage which do not usually accompany ceremonies of this kind. The father of Miss Donaldson was opposed to this match The parties were to have been married on the 26th. Mr. Hinckley started for the residence of h s betrothed, some nine miles, but betion if he should aspire to sovereign fore arriving there, was met by a young power. Great events are depending upon man with a gun, who told him he could not go to the house. There was a notice on the gate-way, or bars leading to the house, reading, "NO ADMITTANCE" young man with the gon asked Hinckley f he had read it. Hinckley replied that hope that the cause of liberty will flour- he had, whereupon he was informed that he had better give heed to it, and some demonstrations were made intimeting that there might be some shooting going on if he did not. Deeming redence the better part of valor, young Hinckley beat a retreat, and forthwith took counsel how he might accomplish by stratagem what he di i not like to undertake to bring about by force. He finally his upon the intowing expedient. Heremon bered that Miss accident occurred there on Tuesday, which was the cause of much excitement. A man was buried alive, forty feet below the surface, by the caving in of a well he was digging. He lies covered with about twenty feet of rubbish. In all probability he was immediately killed. He leaves a wife and several children to mourn his loss. About a thousand people were present last night, attempting to rescue his body from the tomb. After digging some five feet, it became apparent that the workmen were themselves in imminent danger, and it was found necessary to begin at the surface by re-curling the cavity, and working down the entire d stance. It will now probably be two days before they can reach him. About twelve feet were sunk on Wednesday night, and which would be it creased to twenty yesterday morning; probably after that the progress would necessarily be slow .- foston raveller, Nov. 24.
